

Creating a Strong Team Culture

Course Description:

Productivity is seldom the work of just one person. Each person is influenced directly or indirectly by interaction with co-workers. When groups of people interact as a team, synergy produces results that exceed the effort of the most effective employees working alone or in groups. By creating a talent culture, team members learn how to use each other's strengths and thus are more productive and successful. This program covers the essentials for turning groups of people into high-performing teams, motivated toward a common goal, and working at their best. An interactive team simulation and action planners give practical application of team concepts for immediate implementation.
